-One of the most interesting cases One of the most interesting cases ever tried in Memphis was given to the jury in the criminal court of this city late yesterday evening. It was the case of the State reduction of the State was represented by Assistant Attorney-General, Colonel Sam Gammon and Colonel W. L. Duff, and the defense by J. P. Adams, Esq., J. C. Maccabe, Esq., and G. M. P. Turner, Esq. The case occupied nearly two days, and embraced the discussion of many nice points of law as well as of fact, all of which were ably and eloquently handled by the legal gentlemen for both the State and the defense. The jury had not agreed tate last night, though the impression was current that they would elepher acquit the defendant or impose a slight penalty.

— About ten days ago F. L. Young, who fived in the Frenchman bayou neighborhood, Mississippi county. Arkansas, came to this city for the purpose of attending to some business. Last Friday week, he drew one hundred and fifty dollars from Fargason & Clay, due from the sale of cotton, but deposited the money with the landlord of house No. il McCall street, where he was lodging. Next morning he received the money, and started to the elevator, to go home on the steamer Grand Tower. Since then he has not been seen, and nothing has been heard of him. The presumption is, that Young has been murdered for the money he had on his person. James Christenson was the last person known to have seen Young, who told him that he was going home. Young is about twenty years of age, and was raised in Mississippi county, where he has a wife, sister, aunt, and other relatives, who are alarmed as to his fate. other relatives, who are alarmed as to his fate. -There was quite an excitement ong the negro population of the city when es learned the fact that the disbursing they learned the fact that the disbursing officers for the payment of bounties to colored soldiers might be closed all over the country in April, or perhaps sooner, unless a sufficient appropriation was made by congress for that purpose. The secretary of war, in a communication to the house of representatives at washington, asserted this fact, which was telegraphed all over the country, and hence the excitement among the colored population, who have hundreds, and it may be said thousands, of claims against the government for services during the late war. The excitement, however, passed away yesterday, to a great extent, when the announcement was made in the Africal that yesterday, to a great extent, when the announcement was made in the Apprai that the chairman of the committee appropriations had been instructed to report to congress in favor of making such an appropriation as would be necessary for this purpose. Colonel Gibson, United States army, the disbursing officer at Memp his, has at present on his books five hundred bounty claims, which have been ordered to be paid on the proper identification of the claimants being made. These claims in all amount to over one hundred thousand dollars, which could be disbursed in this vicinity within the next three months, if only the persons whose claims have been settled would go to Colonel Gibson's office in the Vincent block, and substantiate the same.

stantiate the same. The case of Scaulan vs. Snell, Taylor & Co., which has been on trial in the United States circuit court for the past ten days, ted States circuit court for the past ten days, was submitted and given to the jury yesterday. The case has been in the Memphis courts for about eight years, and this is the second time it has been tried in the United States court. The plaintiff, Scanlan, alleges that during the war he was employed by the defendants as agent on the White and Arkansas rivers to get out cotton, under certain permits which he held, and which were renewed by General Orme while in command of the post at Memphis. On the other hand, the defendants claim that Scanlan was a parner of the firm, and, therefore entitled to share in the profits and losses of the firm. They also contend that the losses amounted to from sixty to one hundred thousand dollars on their entire cotton transactions. The case embraced many fine points, and was ably argued on the part of the plain.

and was ably argued on the part of the plain-tiffs by Colonel McRae and Mr. Sneed, and on behalf of the defendants by General Humes and Mr. H. S. Lee, Judge Trigg delivered a clear, forcible and lucid charge to the jury, in which he reviewed all the principal points of the evidence and cited the law and anthori-ties hearing on such cases. ALPACAS,

LYONS POPLINS,

During the interval between seasons, I shall give special attention to the re-designing of Dresses, and would suggest the present time as an opportunity not always to be met with for such work. I am in regular receipt of the most choice models for the coming season, and to the most economical will afford an opportunity of entirely changing the general appearance of otherwise pauce styles. Many novelites are about to be introduced in the shape and form of dresses, which I shall embody in these changes, thus giving the wearer the advantage of a new style, earlier than usual in the season.

These whom I have not had the pleasure of meeting as yet, I shall be most happy to see at my rooms, and will promise them something worthy of a trial. During the interval between seasons, worthy of a trial. WATKINS, Dressmaker, EXPECTORANTS are a class of medicines which assist the separation and expulsion of mucus from the air-tubes or bronchi of the lungs. Expectorants are of various kinds, but the great desideratum is to obtain one which judiciously combines tonic and relaxing qualities so that while the expectoration is promoted there shall be no great strain upon a debilitated constitution. In Mansfield's Hungarian Balsam of Life this great object is thoroughly attained by one of the happiest combinations known in the pharmaceutist's art. The ingredients composing this admirable expectorant are given on the wrapper of each bottle, so that each person may know for himself what he is taking, and they will be recognized as excellent remedies EXPECTORANTS are a class of medimay know for himself what he is taking, and they will be recognized as excellent remedies for coughs, coids and diseases of the throat and lungs generally. A peculiar excellence of Mansheld's Hungarian Baisam of Life springs from the careful selection of these ingredients and the thoroughness and scientific manner of its preparation. Its large sale enables the proprietors to manufacture it on a large scale, with approved and new appliances, which insure concentration and uniformity of strength. Those who suffer from lung diseases would do well to test this remedy.

AMUSEMENTS.

Mrs. Chanfrad. Mrs. Chanfrad.

This lady last night closed a very successful engagement at the Theater, during which she gave five representations of A Woman's Wrong and two of Jedicary, or the Outcast Wife. She was greeted on esen occusion by a full house, and we reel safe in asserting, made a lasting impression on the theatergoing public of Memphis. The matine yesterday was a decided compliment to her and to Mr. Tayleur, the weather considered, and a night the attendance was better than is tistial on Saturday nights. We shall look for Mrs. Chanfrat next year, and promise her a warm and generous reception.

Prof. Muelier's Soirce Bansante. At Prof. Mueller's dancing academy, At Prof. Mueller's dancing academy, yesterday afternoon, a whole school of over one hundred little pupils, from three to afteen years of age, learned and danced the graceful Boston Dip, and the beautiful waltz Redouct, in the incredible short time of two hours. The grand circle figure of the German, the Galop, Deax Temps, and the beautiful new Russian Galop, completed the programme of Saturday afternoon's soirce democrate. We have frequently spoken of the excellence that characterizes the teachings of Prof. Mueller, who, as an instructor in the terpsichorean art, has few equals and no superior. He is being patronized by our best citizens, and gives satisfaction to all of his many patrons. John Owens.

The celebrated comedian who divides with Jefferson and Clark the honors of the comedy side of the stage, will take the place of Mrs. Chanfrau, and make his first appearance at the Theater this season on Monday night. The bill for the occasion embraces. The Victim and Silon Shingle. We need not say to our readers anything by way of reminder, of the great excellence of the talent and ability of Mr. Owens. He has held the stage for a quarter of a century, and in that time has made and upheld a character as an artist and man not second to that of any other gentleman connected with the drama. He is accompanied on this occasion by a company of superior merit—one made up with reterence to the proper performance of the plays he has selected, with a view to the prominence of his own great ability as a comedian. We may, therefore, expect a week of comedy equal to anything we have ever known in Memphis, affording abundant opportunities for those who desire to laugh and grow fat We bespeak for Mr. Owens the generous support of the public. We have just opened a beautifut line of JAPANESE POPLINS, MOHAIR LUSTRES,

On Monday night next Frank MacEvoy's pictorial, musical and national entertainment, the New Hibernicon, representing a tour in Ireland, or Ireland in America, will be presented to the public of Memphis for the first time, combining Irish comedy, scenery, songs, dances, wit and humor in one performance. The New Hibernicon, while retaining many of the best scenes of the Old Hibernicon, has in addition many magnificent pictures, original in design, and executed solely for this work. Among them are the following transparent or double pictures, illustrated by Wood's Lindon sleetric ruby light: St. Patrick's Dream or Vision; His Captivity, while a Youth, in Ireland; His Landing in Ireland as a Missionary Bisaop;
His Preaching before the Assembled Kings of Ireland, at Tara; The Death of St. Patrick—

Assembly Hall. size; Exterior of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin—grand procession of bishops; Magnifleent View of the Interior during Divine Service, with choir and organ accompaniment; Interior of the Abbey of Kildare—reception of a novice by St. Patrick. Among the historical pictures are Silken Thomas renouncing his allegiance to Henry VIII; the burning of Waterford and marriage of Eva and Strongbow; Sarafleid capturing King William's sleep trains; superb meonlight scenes at Luggela; the Princess Kathleen on her journey to hear Saint Kevin preach; the races at the Curragh, etc. In addition to these, there are over fifty splendid paintings, representing all the principal cities, the unrivaled lake, mountain, and river scenery, with gorgeous sun and moonlight effects of the Emeraid lale.

Dancing. EDITORS APPEAL-The present style of our dancing is truly subversive of all re-finement, and the true purposes of dancing. All remping, dragging, hugging, and leaning or stooping over the shoulders of partners is decidedly objectionable to the cultivated and refined, and only fit for places of loose resort. In our respectable private houses we hope that it will be looked to by older heads, and

In our respectable private houses we hope that it will be looked to by older heads, and select your teachers accordingly. It must be confessed, and we refer to it with regret that our public balls, even those of high pretentions, are very far from being free of the indecorous objections we mention above. Many of those who claim intellectual superiority, and assume the "glass of fashion," set the example of these European vulgarities in dancing, dress, etc. John Buil in this nonsense imitates his continental neighbors, and which our unsophisticated feelings servilely innitates, are obsequiousness unworthy of American spirit. Why can't we be original? Every accomplishment is limble to be abused; even those the most pure and intellectual. The raise, which was a gay and animated dance on the village-green, transplanted to the soirce dancates, has become infected with the stepless, awkward, Eoston dip, and other vulgarities. But a person of refined taste and lover of moral deportment, can at once perceive the difference between the elegant and the inelegant—the delicate and the indelicate. Cultivation of the arts is to improve the taste, and to elevate the feelings, and while purely and properly practical they most beautifully accomplish their desired views. The benefits of nature are daily abused, and, as it has been truly said, "Gold, ibself the most incorruptable of metal, is the most corrupting of them all." There is really no accounting for public taste in dancing, and we think that the ease and elegance of deportment is much sacrificed in the ball room dances, and figures. We make but a simple remark, not wishing to frespass upon the opinions of teachers or t.) intrade our own ideas as regards rules of grace upon the received public taste. But we may be permitted to say that the most popular balls are not the most elegant. The quadrille, of all the fashionable dances, still retains possession of the ball-room; the young and the old ever delight to walk or trip it lightly.

HON. JNO. S. KERR FOR GOVERNOR. We copy the following worthily-betowed compliment of Colonel Kerr from the Western Methodist, of this city: "We notice that our distinguished fellow-citizen, Colonel John S. Kerr, is referred to in the journals of the State as a probable candidate for governor the State as a probable candidate for governor of Tennessee. We have nothing to do with politics, but it affords as pleasure to express our high opinion, not only of the abilities of Coionel Kerr, but of his excellent character. A gentleman of great moral and social worth, and of invincible integrity, we esteem him as one of the pillars and ornaments of our city, and well worthy of the confidence of the State. We have long known Colonel Kerr as a man of large intellectual capacity and elevated social position, whose excellences of character qualify him for any civil station to which he might be called by the people. If moral purity, indomitable energy and intellectual gifts are requisite in the chair of the State, we are quite sure that Colonel Kerr is one of the right men, and too few there are, for that chair."

This house is, we all know, a gem of architecture within itself, and its beautiful plate glass door, marble floor, elegant fresco and landscape paintings are well worth a visit to see, and when we know that all this and one of the handsomest stocks of ready-made clothing ever brought to Memphis is to be presided over by that agreeable and polite Virginia gentleman, Major Berry, late with the house of Taylor, Joy & Co., we can only say call and see for yourselves, at 332 Main street.

PERSONAL.

DR. BRAMHALL has returned from a rolonged professional absence, and can enceforth be found regularly at his office, 225 Thos. Reinhartz, Winterheur, Switzer-land; F. A. Mitchell, Boston; J. M. Parker, Sherman, Ohlo; and J. W. Cooper, Tuscumbia, were among the visitory to the cotton ex-dname restantiay.

HENRY F. DAY, Esq., a prominent clizen of Moweaque, Illinois, is visiting his brother, Captain Thomas Day, of this city. Mr. Day, who is a genial and interesting gen-therian, is over welcome to our city. DR. B. G. HENNING returned yester-day from his old home in Tipton county, where he was called to see his father, Dr. D. M. Henning, whom, we regret to learn, is un-well, but are pleased to state that he is im-proving.

lar representative of the wholesale candy and canned fruit firm of J. T. Warren & Co., Ch-clanati. Ohio, is in the city. We commend him to our citizens. DB. C. W. W. MALONE, an old and well-known citizen of Memphis has been elected general manager of the Masonie life insurance company by the board of directors, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resigna-tion of Mr. Joe M. Stones. We hope this company will continue its prosperity under its new manager. Colonel Daniel O'Hara, the genial city tressurer of Chicago, and who has many friends in Memphis, arrived in the city yesterday, on the Thompson Dean, from New Orleans, and was warmly welcomed by many of his old "cronies." The gallant "Dan," to use the familiar cognomen by which he is known at fome, may be called the head-center of the Democratic party in Chicago. Heleft for home by the afternoon train.

On the eighteenth instant, Mr. Leo. Enrich, State agent for the Northwestern mutual life insurance company, announced, by advertisement and circular, to the policyholders of that company, its intention to withdraw all its agencies in Tennessee, and, except in the matter of continuing existing policies in force, to close out its business in this section. This course is rendered necessary not only by the inability of the company to stand up to its engagements, or compete successfully in this field with other companies; but, as the circular of Mr. Ehrlich states, "owing to the recent excessive mortality, and, in part, to the heavy local taxation." This is the reason, in a nutshell. Not even the Northwestern, with its fourteen million assets, can afford to take the increasing risks of lifebusiness in this section, and it prefers to can afford to take the increasing risks of life-business in this section, and it prefers to vacate a field that so far has not been remu-nerative. For that reason the agencies in Tennessee are withdrawn, and Mr. Ehrlich will in a few days move to St. Louis, where he will take charge of the agency for the State of Missouri. A young gentleman of remark-able business qualifications, a master in the profession he has pursued so successfully in Memphis for some years past, and a good citi-zen generally, we regret to lose him and with him the company which weathered two spi-demics in Memphis, and has passed through two financial shocks successfully and well. But what is our loss in this case is gain to St. Louis, to the insurance faculty of which city and its citizens generally we most cordially commiend Mr. Ehrlich, hoping for him no less a measure of fortune than here made him conspicaous among our most successful life a measure of fortune than here made him conspicuous among our most successful life insurance agents. It is proper to add that other life insurance companies are following the example of the Northwestern Life, among them the Equitable, Mutual and Globe of New York, and nearly all the leading eastern companies.
